By Carlton Reid

From the first wooden balance bikes to the cutting-edge carbon fiber road racers of today, bicycles have played a central role in human history. They have enabled us to travel further, faster, and more efficiently than ever before, and they have had a profound impact on our culture and society.

In this book, renowned cycling journalist and historian Carlton Reid takes us on a fascinating journey through the evolution of the bicycle, profiling fifty of the most iconic bikes that have ever been made. These bikes include everything from the humble Penny-farthing to the sleek and speedy Tour de France-winning machines of today.

Each bike is profiled in detail, with a wealth of historical information, technical specifications, and stunning photographs. Reid also tells the stories of the people who rode these bikes, from early cycling pioneers to modern-day champions. The result is a book that is both informative and inspiring, and that is sure to appeal to cyclists of all levels.
