The Rastafari movement is a religious and cultural movement that originated in Jamaica in the 1930s. Rastafarians believe that the former Emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie I, is the incarnation of God and that Africa is the Promised Land. Rastafari culture is characterized by its unique music, fashion, and language, and its members are often identified by their dreadlocks and use of marijuana.

The author then examines the core beliefs of Rastafari, including the divinity of Haile Selassie I, the importance of repatriation to Africa, and the use of marijuana as a sacrament.
